Providence Land Society—The Providence Land society of Omaha has filed amended articles of incorporation increasing its capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000.

Keep your money safe—The American Safe Deposit Vault in the Bee building, which is absolutely burglar and fireproof. Boxes rent for only 14 a year or $1 a quarter.

Equal Rights Club Meets—The Equal Rights club, at a meeting held Thursday evening, elected these officers for the following year: President, James Walsh; vice president, F. C. Best; secretary, Samuel W. Scott; treasurer, C. S. Huntington.

Wine Booties for the Navy—Just nine recruits have been secured for the United States navy at the naval recruiting station in the federal building in Omaha thus far during the month of November. The applications have been numerous enough, but a majority of the applicants have failed in the physical, moral and other requirements.

Julius Helphand Loses Suit—Julius Helphand has lost his suit in district court against the Independent Telephone company. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant Friday morning. Helphand runs a store at 24 North Sixteenth street, the basement of which was flooded a year ago last August. Helphand charged the flood was due to the trench dug in the alley by the telephone company. He sued for $1,500.

Inquiry for Missing Daughter—J. R. Thompson of Sheldahl, Pa., has written the Omaha Postoffice department asking assistance in finding his daughter, Miss Lillian May Thompson, who is supposed to be in Omaha. The last word that was had from her was from Omaha, but several weeks have elapsed since then and her father is becoming extremely anxious relative to her whereabouts. No such name appears in the Omaha city directory.

Ed Morgan Thrown from Motor—Emergency Officer Ed Morgan of the police department, who is noted locally as a wrestler and all-around athlete, is slightly incapacitated as the result of being thrown from his motorcycle Wednesday when he ran over a dog. Only the comparatively low speed at which the machine was going saved Morgan from more serious injuries. As it was the motorcycle landed on top of him and hurt his hip so that he will be unable to run down any burglars for a few days at least.

Card System for Beggers—Ida V. Jonts, the general secretary of the Associated Charities in Omaha, has procured a number of cards which she would like the people of the city to give to beggars instead of money or meals. The cards, upon presentation at the office in the city hall, will secure aid for the bearer. Miss Jonts says that the Associated Charities will not do any special Thanksgiving work, leaving that to the churches, Salvation Army and other charitable organizations. Any applicants for aid will be looked after, however.

Bath at Jail for a Penalty—"Turn the hose on this man," said Judge Crawford in police court Friday morning, when L. J. West again appeared before him charged with vagrancy, after having been released Thursday on the same charge. "Give him a bath at the county jail every day for thirty days," said the judge, and West walked away with only enough concern portrayed on his face to show that he more dreaded the baths, not the month in jail. Thursday he was discharged because the judge said he was too dirty to be in jail.

Two Hours to Leave Town—Two hours in which to pack his belongings and leave the city, was the time allowed Carl Seater, a recent prisoner at the county jail, when he was arraigned before Police Judge Crawford Friday morning on a charge of vagrancy and dismissed. Bertha Williams of 40 North Fourteenth street, the woman with whom Seater had been living until he was sent to jail for larceny, was waiting for him at the jail door when he was released after serving a fifteen-day sentence, so they were both locked up. The woman was also discharged in police court and told not to go with Seater.

In Danger of Big Game—George Allen, who was arrested by Sergeant Hays Tuesday night while peddling stolen women's garments in the Third ward, is now liable to have the charge of grand larceny placed against him. Detectives Maloney and Deussen found a large telescope belonging to Allen in a cheap lodging house. Women's clothing amounting to a considerable value were found in the telescope and Chief Savage of the detective force believes that the goods are stolen. They were sent by express to Sioux City from Mankato, Minn., and then reshipped to Omaha, tags which were stamped off the grip showed this to the detectives and indicating to them that the man wished to cover his tracks.

DIVORCE COURT COSTS LOW
Litigants in Gulou Case Must Pay but $5.10, Attorneys' Fees Being Extra.

The Gulou divorce case cost the litigants just $5.10 as far as the expenses incurred by the court are concerned. This sum includes everything included under the head of court costs, but of course does not cover the attorney fees, which are said to have been large on both sides, or the alimony amounting to $10,000. This sum was written up and filed in the district clerk's office after the payment of the costs.

The decree besides giving Mrs. Gulou the alimony in a lump sum confirms her title to her own separate property and provided Mr. Gulou shall have no interest of any kind in it.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Mass Meeting to Discuss Nebraska Power Company's Project.

PROPOSAL IS NOT FAVORED

Bed of Pure Silica Found in Driving Tunnel for the Mud Creek Sewer—Golf Contest at the Country Club.

The proposition of the Nebraska Power company was discussed by a mass meeting of citizens held in the council chamber yesterday afternoon. Although at the conclusion of the meeting the mayor was asked to appoint a committee for further investigation—it was apparent it would be of little use. W. O. Gilbert of Omaha, attorney for the power company, said at the conclusion: "You might just as well say you don't want the contract as to insist on further delay."

The only outspoken advocates of the contract were August Miller, P. J. Barrett, A. L. Berquist and S. L. Winters. F. A. Nash of the Omaha Electric Light and Power company represented the interests of the local company. He said his company had inspected the feasibility of the scheme ten years ago and had spent $5,000 for expert engineers. They had turned the proposition down as not feasible.

Although the citizens discussed the proposition in a spirit of inquiry and with considerable deference to the company, it was evident that they would be extremely cautious. Everyone in prefacing his remarks said if there was any way to give South Omaha cheaper power with safety to all concerned they were in favor of it.

The proposition, as developed in the reading of the ordinance and by the statement of the promoters, briefly, is that the company had sold $5,000,000 of bonds at a figure below par. Not over 300,000 shares of stock had been issued and an unknown amount had been paid up of the amount subscribed. The company had practically no assets nor had it done any development. They hoped to be able, after the contract had been executed in South Omaha for a $2,500,000 plant, to sell enough stock and bonds in Switzerland to finance the company and later develop a $5,000,000 plant at Columbus, Neb.

The proposition for South Omaha was that a plant of 1,500 horse-power per hour for ten hours daily should be installed with distributing lines, for which the city was to pay not to exceed $2,500,000. This was to be paid out of the revenues as they came from the sale of power to private individuals. Public lights were to be paid by a tax at half the present rate per arc. This tax was said to apply on the payment of principal and interest. The big feature was that the city should pay 5 per cent interest on all deferred payments, or $125,000 in interest the first year. The balance of the revenues were to apply on the principal. It was estimated that the city of South Omaha consumes not to exceed $70,000 worth of electricity all told in private enterprises. This would leave a deficit of $45,000 the first year on interest alone, considering no cost of operating or maintaining the plant. The company said if the revenue did not pay the interest there would be obligation to pay interest. This was a proposition which the ordinance left seriously in doubt. Other objections were so numerous and so vital that the discussion of them occupied all the afternoon.

A thing which caused the greatest surprise of all was that S. L. Winters, the democratic city attorney of South Omaha, took the floor and strenuously advocated the plan. In fact, he was far more earnest and emphatic than the accredited attorney of the company, Mr. Gilbert. It had been expected of the city attorney to take a judicial attitude instead of the part of an advocate. This brought on him some sharp criticism on the floor and many private expressions of dissent.

It is not known with what energy the company will proceed under the investigation of the committee of the mayor. The city engineer reported yesterday the discovery of a bed of pure silica, the basic principle of quartz and sand, at the east end of the tunnel, where the National Construction company is working. This bed is eighteen inches thick and of unknown extent. It is of a fine crystalline form, very hard, and for this reason a good substance for all kinds of polishing. The crystals are so minute that it cleans the surface of metals like the best polishes on the market. It may be a valuable find to the parties to the tunnel, by right. If it is possible that some thorough prospecting may reveal other beds in the same section.

Golf Contest.
The South Omaha Country club is planning a golf contest before Thanksgiving day and prizes are to be offered consisting of a number of the best turkeys on the market. If the present fair weather continues the match will be played off Sunday afternoon. A number of entries have been recorded. In addition to the round of the links some contests of accurate driving will be engaged in. This same will also be a sort of emergency for the approach of the annual meeting, which is the first Thursday of December. Some questions of policy of great importance will be brought up. There has been some talk of reopening the question of maintaining a bar. This was well considered at the time of the organization of the club and it is believed then the wise policy was adopted.

Constable McLean Stabbed.
Dennis McLean, one of the constables of South Omaha, was seriously stabbed last night while trying to make an arrest. He went out to Boulevard on the city limits, at the intersection of B street, and placed Henry McCook, a Polish resident under arrest. On the way to the city jail the man suddenly drew a knife and stabbed McLean several times. He maintains that McLean struck him first. The most severe wounds were in the abdomen and at the nose. The latter cut was deep and may leave a serious scar. McLean was taken to the South Omaha hospital, where his wounds were dressed.

FITCH LETTER MET DELAY
Lost Missive from Missing Man Not Posted Until Two Days Had Elapsed After Writing.

Search for Edward P. Fitch, the Council Bluffs man who suddenly disappeared while enroute to London from Paris, has developed one new fact—that the letter which he wrote on a train between Dover and the metropolis after leaving the channel boat, and gave to an acquaintance to post, was not mailed until two days after Fitch had written it.

The unknown train acquaintance to whom he entrusted the missive probably carried it in a pocket for forty-eight hours before putting it in a mail box. This unfortunately not very significant fact is all that has been gleaned by a search which has enlisted the aid of the State departments of Great Britain and the United States and London police. Congressman Walter I. Smith has received a cable from Ambassador Reid saying that a search of every hotel in London has failed to disclose the missing man. The hostess of the hotel has been objective point in the search because his letter stated that he intended to go to such an institution to be operated on for appendicitis.

One guess is that he became so ill on the train that he was removed at an intermediate point. This does not seem likely, however, because the run from Dover to London is not long.

Beethoven Program—Mr. Max Landow

Sonata P. Minor—Op. 57 (Appassionata), Allegro assai

Andante con moto Rondo (Vivace)

Allegro assai

Allegro con moto

Sonata A Flat Major—Op. 10, No. 3

Moderato cantabile molto espressivo

Adagio non troppo

Puga, L'istesso tempo di Arioso, L'istesso tempo della Puga.

Concerto, B Flat Major—Op. 73

Allegro

Adagio (un poco moto)

Rondo (Allegro)

The above program was played by Mr. Max Landow, the distinguished pianist, last night at Schmoller & Mueller hall.

It is not often that a busy teacher can or will take the time in the midst of a season to invite his friends to come and listen to a program of such high quality as the above mentioned. One of the concertos and one of the sonatas would be enough work for the average piano teacher, but Mr. Landow's resources seem to be inexhaustible and such was his vein of sympathy, with these great works which he presented, that the time passed all too quickly, and the people went home with full conviction that they had heard a remarkable group from the works of Beethoven, and that they had left the true Beethoven spirit.

The Bee has on past occasions proclaimed the genius and the happy combination of technique, feeling, and intellect possessed by this man in such a manner that it is not necessary now to go over the ground again. Every student of music would find it an advantage to hear Mr. Landow play and to observe his beautiful delicacy and his classic strength. His work is never effeminate and never noisy. The sincere admiration which he put into the "Arioso dolente" in Sonata Opus 110 was heart moving, and one could get a glimpse of the Master, the titan Beethoven in his later mood. The absolute clarity and distinction of the Puga was also a wonderful piece of work.

An interesting thing about the G major concerto is that it will be just 100 years, (a century), next month, since Beethoven first played it in public.

Mr. Martin Bush played the orchestral part of the concertos on a second piano forte with a discretion and judgment which promise well for his future work. He is on the straight road to a successful career and is walking fast.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Landow will see fit to give some more recitals in the early future and that he will charge a moderate admission fee, which will not exclude the student. This recital was given strictly by invitation. It was not by any means a "concert," in the general sense of the term. Mr. Landow wished to play for his friends and their friends, and while others interested could obtain tickets, yet many hesitated to ask for them. Mr. Landow did wisely also in not issuing as many tickets that the audience-room would not be comfortable. The room was well filled, but there was no crowding.

Discharged Member of Grand Jury Arrested on Complaint Charging Contempt of Court.

A complaint charging A. H. Anderson, who was discharged Saturday from the grand jury, with contempt of court, was filed in district court late Thursday afternoon. The filing of the complaint was in accordance with instructions given by Judge Sears immediately after he had dismissed Anderson. The bill consists of two counts, both charging that Anderson while serving as a member of the grand jury tried to prevent Emma Brown from testifying against a friend of Anderson, and that he threatened, insulted, struck and intimidated her for the purpose of impeding the administration of justice and to shield his friend.

Anderson was taken into custody at 6 o'clock at his home by Deputy Sheriff Flanagan.

SHOW ILLINOISANS' MECCA

President Funk of National Corn Association Declares Many Easterners Plan to Attend.

"The people of Illinois know there is going to be a National Corn show, and it will be held in Omaha and they are going to attend in large numbers," said E. D. Funk of Shirley, Ill., at the Paxton. Mr. Funk is president of the National Corn association and came to Omaha to spend two days conferring with Manager Jones and others in regard to final plans for the installing and judging of the exhibits.

"All over my state," said Mr. Funk, "I meet persons who say, 'Where is the national show to be held—at Omaha, isn't it?' but asking and answering the question at the same time. It shows they have heard all about it and a great many are already making preparations to be here."

"In many sections of Illinois, Indiana and other states east, parties are being formed to charter sleeping cars for the round trip and which may be used as their homes while they are in the city. A large number of these parties will be made up of farmers who are received from the railroads that they can be provided with trackage convenient to the Auditorium. The matter of securing side tracks for such cars has already been taken up with different roads."

Interesting themselves in this matter officials of the Corn exposition are by no means giving out the impression that there is a dearth of hotel facilities in Omaha, but Mr. Funk declared that he has found in many localities in the eastern states large parties who will come to the show if they can be together."

All the exhibits must be installed and judged prior to the opening of the exposition. There will be from 75,000 to 100,000 ears of corn entered besides other grains and grasses. The cars which will gather up these exhibits from the state and local contests will arrive here about December 2, allowing only one week for installing and judging. A large force of judges will be required, probably seventy-five, and they are now being selected.

Mr. Funk was busied while here with conferences looking toward the plans for the agricultural congress, which will occupy the forenoon during the exposition. This will be practically a short course in agriculture and the lectures will be delivered by recognized experts from different states and from foreign countries.

TURKEYS FOR THE TROOPS

Big Birds for Special Army Feast Days as Inducement to Recruits.

Uncle Sam continues to make army life as attractive as possible and as a further inducement to get young men to don the liver of war, will provide them with turkey dinners on holidays. These special turkey feast days are designated as January 1, February 2, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

As a result proposals are now being received by the purchasing commissaries of the army for the Thanksgiving supplies of turkeys for the post of the Department of the Missouri and other departments.

The assignment of Major General William P. Duvall to the command of the military division of the Philippines, succeeding Major General John F. Weston, about to retire, will make Major General Thomas H. Barry, now in command of the American Army of Cuban Pacification, assistant chief of staff of the United States army. This arrangement leaves Major General Leonard Wood in command of the Department of the Atlantic in New York, and continues Major General Fred D. Grant in command of the Department of the Lakes at Chicago, who he recently relieved Brigadier General William H. Carter, who is assigned to the command of the Department of Missouri. General Carter is now on a twenty day's leave of absence, having but recently concluded his work as a member of the army board making staff details for the coming staff detail period.

It is expected that General Carter will arrive shortly before the middle of December, if he comes at all, to take command of the Department of Missouri.

JURY INDICTS CONSPIRATORS

Two Women and a Man Accused of Securing Two Hundred Dollars from an Old Man.

The story of alleged misplaced confidence is revealed in an indictment returned by the county grand jury against three supposed conspirators, two of whom have been arrested and released on bond. The two in custody are Benjamin Cooperstein and Rose Weiner. They, in company with a woman named Sadie, but whose last name is unknown, are charged with inducing Louis Volt, an old man, to give them $200 to invest in a house, telling him the investment would give him enough income to keep him without working the rest of his days. The money, according to the indictment, was not invested and has not been returned to him.

The woman known as Sadie has fled and Sheriff Bralley has been unable to locate her.
